Perry Theatre...

is returning patrons to the thrilling and imagination-filled days of yesteryear, when radio dramas were performed before a live audience.

Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol", presented as a radio play, will come to life just as it did back in the days of vintage 1930's and 40's radio entertainment, through the voices, body language, and sound effects performed by a number of prominent and very talented Taylor County citizens.

A pre-show skit, written by Mrs. Schmidt, opens the production portraying a typical family setting on the eve of Christmas 1939, then segues to the radio station where Ms. Rosie Flores, (on Friday), and Ms. Samantha King, (on Saturday), sings "Button Up Your Overcoat", a popular song of the era, and proceeds into the beloved Christmas tale.
